If you are an ESRC-funded student keen to communicate your research to a wider audience then we want to hear from you. The ESRC writing competition rewards outstanding written communication. We’re looking for an original article that conveys your research in a compelling way to a non-scientific audience and explains how your research helps people have better lives.

There’s a £1,000 prize for the winner, £500 for each of the runners-up and all the finalists are invited to a writing masterclass run by our partner SAGE Publishing.
